

DESERT SANDS — 1985 EDITION

hey Mr. B,

Well, Can't Believe I'm almost Ready to take my 1st big step in life! "Wow!!"

I Really enjoyed being in Choir these last 3 years. It took you a little work to get me out of my shell but you did it! thanks for all the Confidence! I hope everything goes up ~~well~~ well for you! I won't forget this class.

Because it helped me to be noticed more before I really got all my self-confidence! I owe alot to this class. You are a wonderful person - I wish you the best of luck. Take Care

"45" The Book. God Bless ya.

Love always

Mr B
This is the edge

5-21-85

Mrs. B. will bring in get some wood too bad I don't you're glad, too bad I hope!
you're next year I hope.
be more next year already

But I think you need had enough of me. Since you need had me in your class for 2 1/2 years.
Thanks for helping me out in class. Maybe one of these days
I'll get some soul in me.

Take care and God bless you,

Your Soul Student,
Marialedo

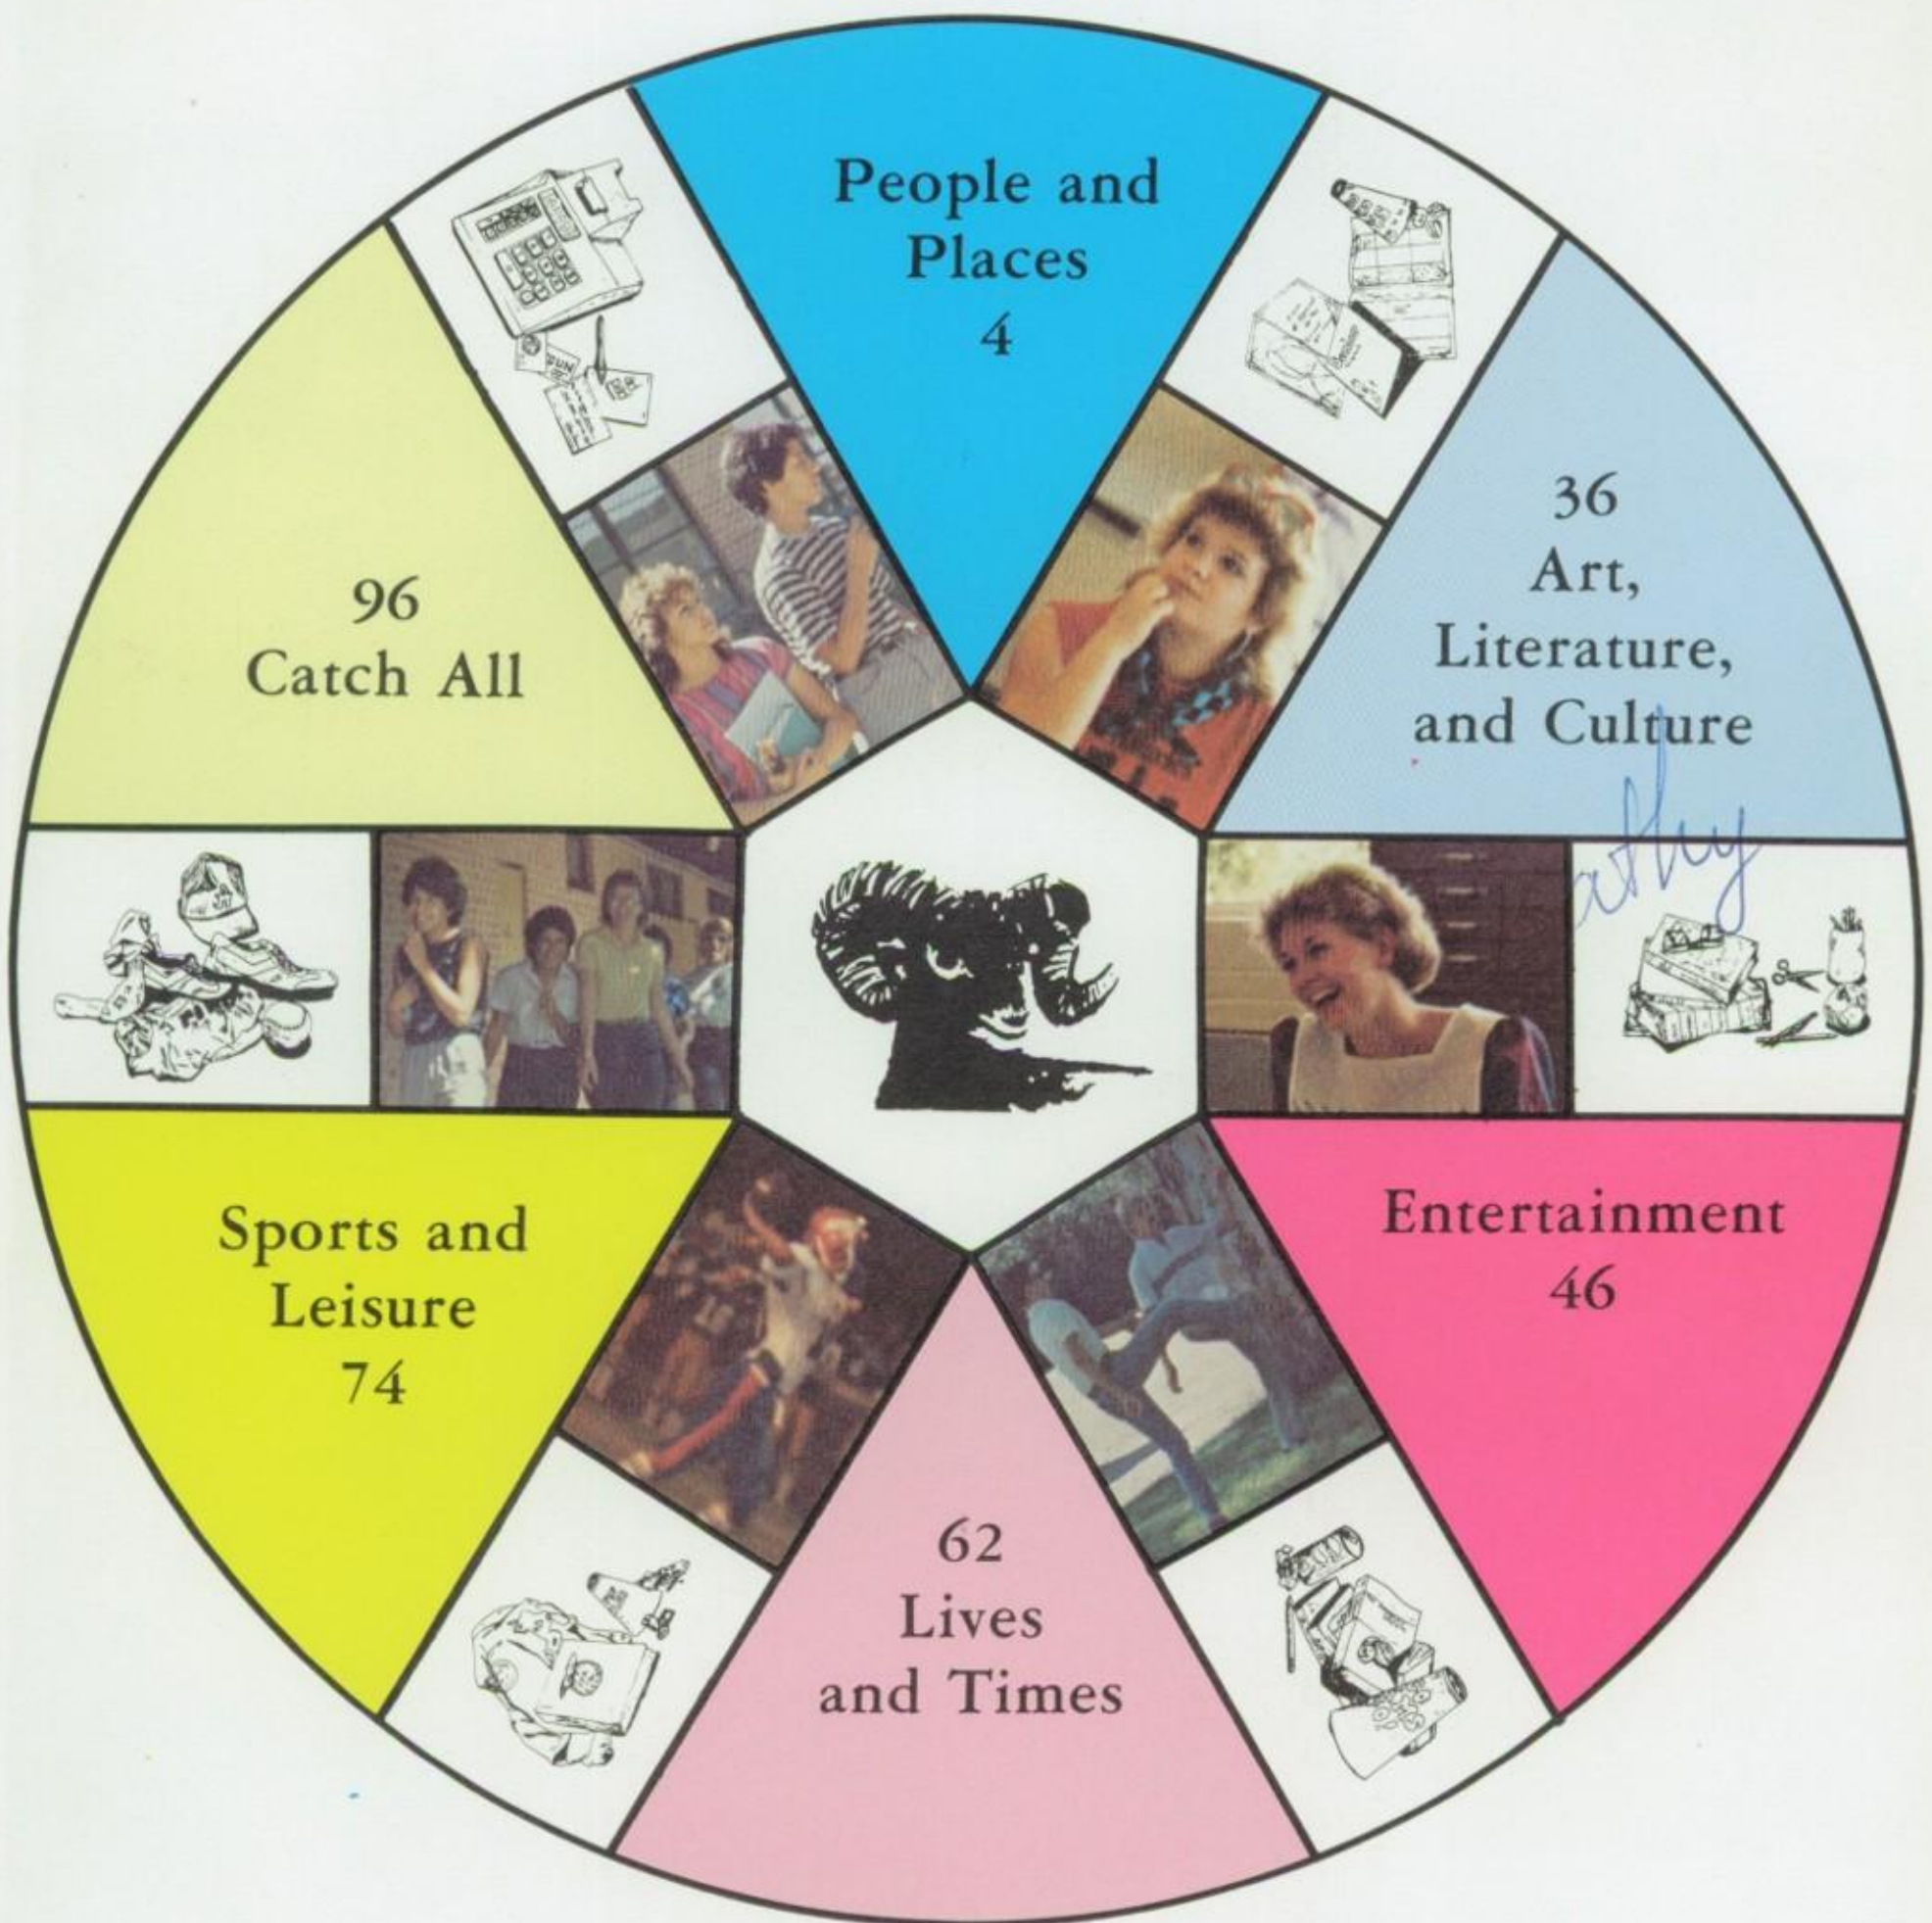

MR. B...

Thanks for all you have done - you've made the band dept. the great place it is.
Thanks for pushing us to be the best.

When climbing famous cliffs be able to tell all it was w/ a lot of help from you.

Remember you're the greatest - a ~~reticent~~ guy.

RAM PURSUIT

Desert Sands Volume 31

Antelope Union High School Rt. 1 Box 26 Wellton, Arizona 85356

▼ Maria Manquero and Dannette Millner look over their work in graphic arts.

▲ Advisor Mr. Ferra, Principal Mr. McCormick, and Superintendent Mr. Grande show their Ram pride as they cheer for the varsity football team.

▼ Elias Chavez looks through the library card catalog.

► Tasha Spurgeon studies tediously in the library. Liz Dail, Rindi Nottingham, Kelly Fitzgerald, and Renae Robertson master the art of forming a pyramid.

PURSUIT OF EXCELLENCE

"They can because they think they can." This famous quote by Virgil, one of the world's most outstanding poets, quite well described the reason for the success of the 1984-85 school year. The Rams had many feats to conquer, but working toward their goals with care and confidence, they ultimately proudly triumphed.

"Charging to Excellence," Antelope's logo for the school year, represented the school's intentions for the year: the pursuit of excellence. The spirit and enthusiasm displayed by the students and staff was greater than ever, and positive attitudes got them headed toward a great year.

Ram pride was strong from the start. Students and staff were all proud to be a part of Antelope — to be Antelope Rams. To them, being a Ram meant looking toward the future, achieving goals, working for success, and, simply stated, being excellent at whatever they did.

Antelope faced many changes in 1984-85, and although changes are often hard to accept, the Rams managed to make the adjustments that were necessary to make the year a success. The incredible cooperation and participation exhibited by everyone at Antelope was overwhelming the whole year through.

A Ram represented excellence, and hence, the "Ram Pursuit" was the pursuit of excellence. Antelope's school spirit and Ram pride paved the path for the excellence the Rams had worked so hard to reach, and the school's achievements proved that Antelope was undoubtedly on the Ram Pursuit.

Through the combined efforts of the staff and students, the year progressed with achievement after achievement — with conquered feat after conquered feat — with triumph after triumph. In spite of the many adjustments that had to be made, the Antelope Rams worked together as a team and truly made the year successful. As Virgil might have put it, "They did because they thought they could."

▲ Sherry Norton takes a flying leap to add some excitement to class.

People and Places

Believe It Or Not

Pirates believed that piercing the ears and wearing earrings improved their eyesight. Maybe that's why women, girls, and even men and boys were walking around with holes in their ears.

In the past, ear-piercing was for the "hippies" only; by 1984-85, however, it had become the trademark for the "cool dudes." Ear-piercing had been popular for many years among females, but recently, males were joining in the craze as well. To add to the ear-piercing craze, piercing the ear more than once soon became very popular.

If the pirates' medieval belief was true, one thing was for sure: these people must have had extraordinary eyesight!

Julie Slocum and Kim Cullison crack down on their slave, Treva Taylor, on Freshman Slave Day.

To succeed

Positive attitudes, good grades, and achievements were qualities German Reyes and Paula Milam portrayed through their high school years. German and Paula were chosen as the most likely to succeed because of their many involvements at AUHS. Their senior year, German was the President of Student Council, and Paula held a heavy load as the FFA President. These were just parts of their busy schedules. They were preparing to succeed in the rough world.

Mr. "B"

It's been really great being in your music class. You've helped me to open the door to the music world. Thanks for everything. Take Care of your back and Good-Luck in life. I'll never forget you. I'll have you to Thank when I'm famous.

Lot of Love,
Cindy

Personality

Friendship came easily for Rocky Jaime and Sherry Norton. They had extra time to share with everyone no matter what kind of day they were having. Rocky and Sherry received the titles for "Best Personalities" because as Charla January stated, "They get around!" Special friends are what Rocky and Sherry were, and they helped make the whole Senior Class feel special.

Flirts

A day without a wink, a kiss on the cheek, or a cute little glance from Lance Madron or Renae Robertson would have been a dull one. The seniors' biggest flirts were busy during the school days making people smile. Lance, "the kid," never walked alone. He always had a girl's hand to lead him to class. Renae, on the other hand, simply shared lots of hugs.

The Senior Class came to Antelope as 111 individuals, not knowing where to go or what to expect next. Some had been together since their first years in school and others were meeting for the first time. The class was a typical freshman class, full of questions and full of hope and desire.

The seniors had different ambitions and desires. Career goals ranged from computer technologists to farmers. Many members of the Class of '85 set their goals high. Daniel Gutierrez was a good example. When asked what he wanted to do after high school graduation, he said that he wanted to go to college and major in electrical engineering.

Kathy Henry, a senior, expressed her feelings about the Senior Class by saying, "The last four years had joy, sorrow, trouble and victory. I would not have missed it for anything. These past four years have made us, the Class of '85, what we are."

Charging to Excellence

Antelope started out the year with numerous amounts of changes. Among them was the school logo. Its purpose was to encourage students to do the very best they could in everything they did. Antelope adopted "Charging to Excellence" as its logo for the 1984-85 school year.

When Mr. Reed McCormick, Antelope's new principal, was asked how he came up with the logo, he explained that he had gone to a conference with the theme of "Excellence Through Education." Furthermore, schools had been criticized for not challenging students in the classroom. Keeping excellence, challenges, and the Antelope Rams in mind, Mr. McCormick came up with the school's new inspiring logo.

As Mr. McCormick put it, "There is always room at the top." And, charging to excellence, that's exactly where the Antelope Rams were headed — the TOP!

The Masters

The Masters were the students of the school who played music for the school dances. Having the music played by the students saved a lot of money since the Masters replaced a hired disc jockey.

The Masters for the 1984-85 school year were German Reyes, Richard Powells, Dannette Millner, and MaRae Smith. Their job was to set up the stereo system for the school dances. They also had to make sure the equipment was in good condition and see that there were enough records.

When Richard was asked what the response was from the students, he said, "Sometimes you get a lot of complaints because all the students don't like the same kind of music. You have to try to play different kinds of music for everybody."

The Masters were a good addition to the school because they saved Antelope money. Rafael Ramirez commented, "They really helped clubs make bigger profits at the dances." The students also felt more comfortable about asking for requests or volume adjustments. German Reyes expressed his feelings about the Masters: "We jam!"

Video craze

Probably more than half the students at Antelope had a video cassette recorder in their home. A VCR was a machine that enabled people to watch popular movies on their own television set.

Several factors brought about the popularity of the VCR. A lot of people preferred to watch a movie at home. Also, with the use of a VCR, it was much more inexpensive than going to a walk-in theater.

Robert Babb commented, "I think they are neat because you can invite friends over to watch movies with you." When Manuel Chacon was asked why he liked VCR's he said, "I like them because I can watch all the new movies."

The new way of shaking

The latest dance craze had arrived at AUHS. Everybody at least tried to pop or break at the dances. Not a dance passed by without a showdown. A showdown was when people danced against each other to see who danced the best.

The first showdown at Antelope was held during a pep assembly in which the cheerleaders sponsored a break and pop contest. Kirk Wilterding, a freshman, won the contest by outdancing the other participants and receiving the loudest cheers from the students. Mindy Langford, another showdown participant, enjoyed surprising everybody with her dancing talent, and said, "I had a blast."

Popping and breaking was a fad, as disco had been. It would be popular for a while then fade away . . . but it would never be forgotten.

Fads take over

Oh my gosh! What has my daughter turned into? Every day I see her in those faded pants with a giant belt hanging around her hips and tons of jewelery.

Accessories, accessories, accessories . . . they tied all of the new outfits together. The accessories consisted of bandannas, ribbons, colorful rhinestone earrings, twist head necklaces, a variety of colorful belts, and many others. Treva Taylor said, "It's so cool to dress however you want because there are no set rules on fashion these days. All of the new colorful clothes just make you feel better about yourself."

Some mothers had a hard time getting used to their flashy daughters, but one thing was for sure: the girls certainly got noticed.

Boosters unite

A new club was organized for parents and students at Antelope. The club's purpose was to promote school spirit, raise funds to promote curricular and extra-curricular participation, and provide people-power to support AUHS activities. Mr. Koury, a member of the Booster Club, said, "Antelope was long overdue for a Booster Club. We needed something to get the parents, as well as the students, involved."

The twenty-seven members that attended the first meeting elected the club officers. The officers for the 1984-85 year were: president — Ernie Millner, vice president — Doug Henry, and secretary/treasurer — Ann Auza. By the club's third meeting, membership had increased enormously to sixty members and was still growing.

The Booster Club was interested in getting involved in all types of school related activities, which ranged from academics to sports. The club worked to recognize outstanding students. For example, they chose a player who played exceptionally well during the week. The student athletes liked the idea and worked hard towards being chosen in their sport. Susie McClelland, a player named Player of the Week during volleyball said, "It made me play better knowing that I'd had a great week."

The student body liked the purpose of the Booster Club and were glad it had been formed. The club improved school spirit and kept students active. Most importantly, the Booster Club showed Antelope students that the community really cared.

Programs debut

Two new programs were offered at Antelope for the first time. Advanced Placement (AP) was produced for the ambitious students, and the Parallel Alternate Curriculum (PAC) provided help to students two or more years placement below their grade level.

The coordinators for AP were Mrs. Wolfe, the upper division English instructor, and Mr. LaDuke, the math and computer science instructor. The subjects in which AP was offered were English and computer science, but, as Mrs. Wolfe said, "Over the years, we hope to expand these offerings." Although participating in AP required extra work and effort, the student was rewarded with three college credits if the AP exam was passed.

The PAC program made the use of tutors and cassette tapes available to students two or more years below their level. The purpose of this program was to help these students raise their grade level. When the program was tested, the students raised one and a half years placement for every year they were in the program.

These programs were only two of the extras offered for the first time at Antelope. Plans for improvements and expansions of the programs were being made, but the first step had been taken, and a better and brighter future for Antelope was just around the corner.

European adventure

In the summer of 1984, several Antelope students participated in a European tour. For one month, the group of students travelled around Europe by bus, visiting several different countries including Switzerland, Germany, England, Holland, Italy, Austria, France, and Spain.

Through their visits to the several countries, the students discovered a variety of cultures and gained a better perspective of the world around them. Dusty Shill, a participant in the trip, commented, "I had a good time, but the food was a little hard to get used to." Renae Robertson, another participant, added, "I met a lot of people and learned about many different cultures. The people were all so friendly and helpful. It was a trip I'm sure none of us will ever forget."

The European tour was quite an unforgettable experience for those who participated. Kim Cullison's opinion about the trip was similar to the rest of the participants': "It was tubular. I would love to go again."

Looney tunes

"It's here! The new DX-7 came in!" These were familiar words among the band members and even the band director, Mr. Bechtloff, at the beginning of the year.

The DX-7, a modern synthesizer, came with 128 preprogrammed sounds, all wrapped into one keyboard. The synthesizer could also be programmed by a computer to create new sounds. Any sound was possible. Anything from a volcano exploding to a perfect electric piano could be heard. It was equipped for use with computers, other synthesizers, and/or drum machines.

When asked what he thought of the DX-7, Mr. Bechtloff replied, "I think it's the neatest thing since ice cream!" But he added more seriously, "I'm very interested in all the musical doors it will open."

The DX-7 was used in the jazz band as well as in the concert band. It helped to take the place of the lower toned instruments that the concert band lacked and assisted both bands in producing better sounds.

Last year both the jazz band and the concert band took first place in the B-West Division. This year they made the best even better.

Art, Literature, and Culture

Culture Changes

Many years ago, flamingo tongues were a common delicacy at Roman feasts, but by 1984-85 things had changed a great deal. Culture changes caused a new variety of foods to be developed.

Many students considered a number of different foods their delicacies. Timbo Smith said, "I love shrimp and it is always my first choice delicacy." Sweets were also a big hit among the students. Chocolate bars and suckers were the favorites of everyone.

The delicacies had changed with the times. Flamingo tongues were the delicacies known to the Romans and hamburgers and hot dogs were adopted by the Americans. The food cultures will keep on changing as time goes on. Who knows? Maybe someday hog eyelids will be the most special delicacy of all.

Mr. LaDuke enjoys a cultural concert during a school assembly.

Positive opinions

"Out of five schools that I've attended I have never enjoyed my first year as much as I have enjoyed my first year at Antelope," stated Mrs. Wolfe, the new upper division English teacher.

Just as Mrs. Wolfe easily adjusted to the new students, so did the other new teachers. The relations between teachers and students grew and the 1984-85 school year was "definitely more bearable," as Miss Milburn stated.

Another new addition to the school was the art teacher, Mr. Thompson, who said, "I like Antelope High School and teaching art. Although some classes are more trying than others, on the whole, they are great."

It took a lot of cooperation from everyone to make the year not only bearable but also successful. However, Antelope Union High School did accomplish its goal and made 1984-85 a great school year.

The best ever

who wrote this! Ha Ha

The board of education served as the "supreme being" in the school district and consisted of five community members who served for two-year terms.

In 1984, not only was the President of the United States elected but even a small town school like Antelope elected its board of education.

Members that served on the board until January 1985 were Keith Milam, Bobby Smith, Carole Rush, John Vershoor, and Wayne Stuhr. Four members continued their stay on the board either by re-election or to finish their terms. In January, John Vershoor was replaced by Gary Langford, elected to his position in November.

The board of education kept the school going by determining school rules and making decisions about purchases for the school. They made the students their number one priority and helped the students make 1984-85 the best year ever.

A giant leap

The main objective of school is education. With a change in the course outline, Mr. McCormick, the principal, tried to make classroom education most important at Antelope.

All of this change started with teachers making weekly lesson plans. These plans were formed into scope and sequence, and were the map to success in a course. Scope and Sequence helped the students find objectives and learn what they were supposed to be learning.

In the long run the course plans were designed to benefit the students. They were to be used as guides for the students so they could plan what classes they needed to complete to obtain their ultimate goal, a career.

Mr. McCormick hoped that his teaching technique would eventually lead to what he called a four-year plan in which students could make a list of the classes they needed to take with the help of a catalog of course descriptions.

As Mr. Slater commented, "This is one small step for teachers, one giant leap for Antelope."

Entertainment

that was us!

Grecian pastime

The Greeks, according to Greek historians, introduced kissing in a peculiar manner. Whenever they wanted to know if their wives had been sipping wine, a kiss on the lips would give a clue.

Mrs. Bounds, the security guard, did not accept that excuse. Kissing is kissing and in school it was prohibited. She said, "School is the wrong place for that type of entertainment." Dannette Millner and William Stewart agreed, but also felt "a little kiss now and then is harmless."

Couples at Antelope ranged from freshman and freshman to senior and senior. Occasionally a senior-freshman couple could be found. But then, that's entertainment.

'84-'85 Big Deals

All the way from a little old lady capturing the hearts of American TV watchers, to the Summer Olympics, to the Presidential election. What a year 1984 was; the action never ended.

The fight was on. Would President Reagan be re-elected or would Walter Mondale and the first woman Vice President step in? Throughout the campaign, the general consensus of the public was that Reagan would win by a landslide. The people were right: Ronald Reagan was reelected over his opponent.

Michael Jackson remained a thriller in the entertainment world. He did have to share the stage, however, with newcomer Prince. Another top performing artist was the group Van Halen. "Jump," a song from their album "1984," rose to become the number one song of the year.

Mary Lou Retton's infectious smile became world wide known as the women's U.S. gymnastic team won the gold medal in the 1984 Summer Olympics at Los Angeles, California. This was just one victory among many for the United States. The U.S. stole the show throughout the Olympics, leaving with more medals than any other country.

"Where's the Beef" Clara Porter's famous question, asked in advertisements for Wendy's hamburgers, was well answered in 1984. It was right here in the U.S.A.

1984-85 was an award winning year for many students. In June of 1984, Richard Miller, a 1984 Antelope graduate, was elected as the state president of the Future Farmers of America organization. He was the first Antelope FFA member to ever hold the office of State President.

The Vocational Industrial Clubs of America Fall Leadership Conference was an eventful one for both German Reyes and brother Alberto. German ran for the same office his brother had held the year before: state vice president. For the first time in VICA history, a brother had the honor of handing his office over to another brother as German Reyes was elected 1984-85 VICA State Vice President.

Antelope was proud of its students. High achievers showed up throughout the whole year. Nora Amavisca became the defending champion for the Voice of Democracy Contest, and Mindy Langford was third in the nation with her poem "The Pride and the Promise" in the Statue of Liberty Poetry contest. These were just a few of the high achievements made by the Antelope students in 1984-85, but such achievements clearly exemplified the caliber of students at AUHS.

Moving ahead

"Hello, Mr. McCormick" ... "Mr. who?" This phrase was a common thought for students entering Antelope for the 1984-85 school year. As Antelope students soon discovered, many changes had been made in the school.

The year's biggest change occurred in the faculty. Twenty-six percent of the teachers were new. New clubs and programs also added to the Antelope scene. Intramurals, for example, was a big hit on campus. Efren Chabolla stated, "I really like it. It's a lot of fun and gives kids who can't participate in team sports a chance to play their game."

Although adjustments had to be made to adapt to the changes of the new year, the Rams met every change with pride and confidence. Most of the students agreed about the changes: as Kam Burks stated, "I think there have been a lot of good changes in the school. School spirit has really improved and so has emphasis on academics."

Slaves endure

Comments heard from the newly initiated freshmen included, "I'll get even with them!" and "I can hardly wait till next year to put heels and a dress on some freshman boy!" The freshmen had finally faced the big day of the Freshmen Slave Sale.

The first half of the slave sale took place in the compound on a Wednesday afternoon. This broke Antelope's tradition of holding the slave sale in the auditorium. With the hot September weather, student enthusiasm was hardly at its peak, and sales were low. Most slaves were sold for under $5.00 during the first sale. A few exceptions among the low bidders, though, were the buyers of Kirk Wilterding and Tark Rush, who sold for $31.00 each.

Heading for the cafeteria the last day of the slave sale, the students were ready to bid again. The cooler atmosphere of the cafeteria seemed to inspire higher bidding. Babe Delgado was the highest priced freshman, selling for $37.00.

Facing their owners was tough for many freshmen. Some did not appreciate being dressed up (or inside out, in some cases) or fanning their masters. But having faced their fears and conquered them, many freshmen came to school Monday with a fresh new outlook and a greater feeling of belonging.

The night that purple reigned

The gun went off and it was halftime. The whole school had been preparing for the big night of Homecoming. "Purple Reign" was chosen as the Homecoming theme. The theme idea was inspired by a popular rock star's song and movie: Prince's "Purple Rain."

MaRae Smith, one of the main Homecoming coordinators, said, "Homecoming was a lot of work but also a lot of fun. Getting everything together was a chore, and I sometimes wondered why I was doing it. But after it was all over, all the work was worth it when I saw how well Homecoming went."

Halftime was not all of Homecoming. For students who were part of Homecoming royalty it meant getting suits or dresses and giving up a couple of their lunch periods for rehearsals. Sherry Norton said, "Homecoming was a lot of fun but I think that the anticipation was more exciting than the night itself. That night I was worried about falling out of the car or tripping on the stairs."

The time finally came to announce the king and queen. The 1984-85 Homecoming king and queen were announced: Rocky Jamie — king and Maricela Rojano — queen. Maricela commented "I was really nervous at first, then when it was announced that I won, I felt excited.

I didn't know what to do. The world stopped and all I knew was that I had won, and I was really glad."

Rocky summed up his feelings about winning and Homecoming by saying, "I was really surprised I won. It was the most exciting thing that's happened to me in high school."

Homecoming was a special night for all who were involved. The lighted A and the game victory had a unique effect on us all.

Countdown to '85

Balloons, confetti, and noisemakers all contributed to the success of the New Year's dance sponsored by the Future Homemakers of America. The dance, "A New Year's Party," was held January 12, 1985 to celebrate the arrival of the year. This event changed the tradition of the Cinderella Ball, and Cinderella and Prince Charming were changed to Mr. and Miss '85.

The events of the evening included a Mexican fiesta dinner, pictures by Ann's Photography, and music by Leonel Federico. After the countdown to the new year, Mr. and Miss '85 were announced and crowned. The winners were Mark Marlatt and Dannette Millner. Both were very happy to have won. Dannette commented, "It was great starting the new year as Miss 1985."

Desert Sands King & Queen

December royalty

The Senior Class won two titles in December, Mr. and Miss Christmas Cheer and Desert Sands King and Queen.

The Christmas Cheer competition was sponsored by Student Council and was designed to encourage students to donate canned foods for the needy families of our community.

The Desert Sands King and Queen were determined by the number of yearbooks purchased by each class. The Senior Class won the contest by purchasing ten more yearbooks than the other classes. This year's Desert Sands victory marked the fourth year in a row for the Class of '85.

Everybody's support made the competitions fun and a success.

Crowd pleasers

Students were on their feet and clapping to the popular song "We're Not Gonna Take It" by Twisted Sister. That assembly presented the Air Force Contemporary Rock Band, and such a scene was just one example of student enthusiasm at school assemblies.

The purpose of the assembly program was to bring special programs to students, giving them a more well-rounded social communication that instruction alone could not provide.

The assembly program provided entertainment for students, and taught them to appreciate certain talents they might never have considered intriguing. Dr. Alfredo Ortiz, a famous harpist, was a perfect example. The majority of the students may have walked into that assembly expecting a boring hour of classical music ahead of them. But Alfredo Ortiz surprised them with an interesting variety of music, including the popular song, "I Just Called To Say I Love You," by Stevie Wonder and Bette Midler's "The Rose." The students' reaction was obvious as they gave Alfredo Ortiz a standing ovation after his outstanding performance.

Timbo Smith expressed her opinion: "I think the assemblies have really improved."

Action packed

Most Antelope students agreed that lunch time was the busiest part of their day. Everybody had their own special thing going on at that time. Lunch time activities varied greatly — from pigging out to the latest gossip on who was with whom at the dance Friday night.

All clubs took advantage of this time to sell junk food to the students. Everything seemed to sell well at Antelope. Posters advertising food often made diets the farthest thing from the students' minds. Temptations ranged from nachos to snow cones; everyone's favorite junk food was sold at one time or another.

In forty minutes, the students ran around from place to place. With the many different activities that went on at the same time during lunch, students found lunch time to be not only the busiest part of their day but their favorite part of the day as well.

P.T. Barnum, a famous ringmaster, perhaps formed the best circus ever!

Antelope students sometimes felt like they were in a circus. This feeling attacked the students who belonged to several clubs. With so many activities happening at the same time, students were often pulled in five different directions at the same time.

Antelope's circus was a lot different than P.T. Barnum's first circus. Instead of the most tattooed woman in the world, Antelope's version of a circus featured FFA, VICA, and FHA members in official dress, and instead of a Ubangi with saucers in his lips, students at Antelope might have been caught stuffing their faces with the delicious junkfood often sold during lunch.

Maybe in a century, the "circus" happenings at AUHS will seem as bizarre as P.T. Barnum's first circus.

Clubs in action

Future Farmers of America, National Honor Society, Future Homemakers of America and Student Council were all high achieving organizations. They set their goals high and did everything in their power to reach them.

The annual FFA Homecoming Barbecue was the most successful one FFA had held in years. This was just one activity that raised money for the club's trips and various activities.

NHS was in its first year of being an active club on campus. Among their many projects to help and improve the school and community, Antelope's NHS Chapter provided a tutoring service for students and worked with the school's curriculum advisor to put on the first Career Day ever held at Antelope.

FHA's "A New Year's Party" was a great success. The party took the place of the Cinderella Ball, and its proceeds went to pay for the club's participation in state conventions and for a trip to Los Angeles at the end of the year.

Who made all these activities possible? If you guessed Student Council, you were right. If it weren't for Student Council, none of these activities would have been possible. The council was the student governing body of the school.

Through their many accomplishments, these organizations brought Antelope pride, and through their members' dedication and hard work, they gained the respect of the students and of the community.

Growing stronger

Summing up Key Club's qualities was very easy. Key Club was young, strong but more importantly, growing. Its services to the community were given with lots of ambition. Liz Dail, president, said, "Since we had more members this year, it made things a lot easier. The members were really cooperative and helped whenever and wherever they were needed."

The Vocational Industrial Clubs of America also followed the pattern of increasing membership. The club obtained its goals by helping members gain knowledge for their future career. German Reyes brought the chapter pride and prestige by being elected state vice-president. On the whole, VICA gained more respect as a club.

Many students felt the need for a theater club. Mrs. Wolfe responded to this need by sponsoring the Drama Club's first year. The Drama Club's goal was to enable students interested in drama to improve their acting skills. The members worked on one act plays to perform for the student body, such as "Case of the Missing Corpse." After conquering their stage fright, the Drama Club gained confidence and provided excellent performances for the school.

Teamwork helps

Becoming a team was the Desert Sands Yearbook Staff's goal. Teamwork was needed to meet deadlines and raise money so that Antelope could have a yearbook. Sherry Norton commented, "Working on the yearbook staff has been a lot of hard work, but there are a lot of fun times too. We are like one big, happy family working together."

Even though the Close-Up Club consisted of only two members, being its first year at Antelope, it too needed teamwork. The club's goal was to learn about the way the nation is governed. They worked with the community to raise money and achieved their goal by visiting Washington D.C. for a week in March.

Clubs promote spirit

The Spirit Club was the group whose members openly displayed their Ram Pride. With Sponsor Pat Koury pushing them, the members cheered the football team to its first B-West title in ten years.

The Spirit Club continued to cheer Antelope to victory throughout the school year and helped Antelope athletes charge to excellence.

After a year's absence, the A Club began again at Antelope to recognize students who had played on varsity teams. Varsity letter recipients in sports, music, and cheerleading united to form the A Club.

Although A Club was basically an honorary club, members contributed to the school with a display of unified support of AUHS activities.

and knowledge

For many years the Science Club had raised money to take field trips to places that taught members about science and nature. To raise money for such field trips, the members sold snow cones and sodas to refresh the Antelope students.

The club taught the students about the world around them and made the students more appreciative of their surroundings.

The Multicultural Club? What's that? At the beginning of the year, many students were heard asking that question, not knowing that the Spanish Club had expanded to cultures around the globe and hence changed its name.

Throughout the year, the club raised money to go on a field trip to Mexico by selling burritos and nachos.

4 yrs of this Room - 11 Classes - Sharon "Suite" Sounds of Music

When the curtains opened, a surprising new sound stunned the audience at Antelope. The new sound was jazz music performed by the AUHS Jazz Band. They played a variety of music ranging from pure jazz to jazzy Christmas songs.

One of the most exciting parts of the jazz tunes was the solos that added the extra touches by capturing the audience's attention. The new DX-7 was also a big hit that added the depth the jazz band needed.

The jazz band's major performances included the Christmas Concert, the B-West Band Festival, and the Spring Concert. They never failed to impress the audience and proved themselves to be a valuable addition to Antelope's music program.

A lot of spirit was also contributed by the choir's hard work for the Christmas and Spring Concerts. YAY!

Angelic Calvin said, "Choir was fun, but the responsibility was hard."

Choir was not easy. Every member had to rely on the others to learn their parts. One sour note could ruin an entire song, but practices and determination enabled the members to meet their responsibility with the choir.

Last year a trend was set by the AUHS Band. They were the "Best in B-West" and had to continue the trend in 1984-85. It was a hard act to follow, but they succeeded in making the trend continue.

The Band's Christmas Concert included new features such as the woodwind quartet and the flute choir. Later in the year, the band attended the B-West Band Festival, and ended the year by pulling off another successful Spring Concert.

All of the band's spirited hard work did not stop there. The Pep Band was at almost every football game, basketball game, and pep rally. AUHS was proud of their band!

It all stacks up

Do you know what two suits contain the one-eyed jack in a deck of cards? Any card freak knows it is the two suits of hearts and spades.

Back in the Old West, poker games were sometimes a life and death matter. Some men played for days and others lost quickly, but they all played for high stakes and the winner would take all.

Poker players could turn the odds to their favor if they would simply remember a few "simple" facts: from a fifty-two-card deck, it is possible to deal 2,598,960 different five-card poker hands; of those, 1,088,240 will contain a pair.

Most players say it is all skillful playing, but actually, it all stacks up to probability.

Antelope

The varsity cheerleaders of Antelope High made a commitment to be loyal to school spirit.

With this commitment, in the summer of 1984, the five cheerleaders and Mrs. Vicki Moore, the sponsor, pulled out for National Spirit Ambassadors Camp in La Jolla, California.

The girls from AUHS were the smallest group in attendance, but they added life to camp with their desire to succeed. After winning a spirit stick, the "most improved" award, and an overall spirit award, they knew nothing could stop them. These girls carried their success back to Antelope. Their enthusiasm and new ideas beefed up pep assemblies and games. Their spirit flowed over to the students and secured the student body's loyalty to school spirit.

The varsity cheers weren't the entire picture. There were some new faces that added spunk to the campus of AUHS. The JV cheerleaders were new, but they set out to learn quickly. By helping the varsity cheers in selling ribbons, encouraging participation at pep assemblies, and cheering at girls' games, the JV cheerleaders supported the athletes with desire and never-ending enthusiasm.

Julie Slocum summed up school spirit by saying, "We've got it together!"

It had been thirteen long years of losing streaks for Antelope's varsity football teams. In 1984-85, however, the team ended that streak and started a new tradition.

The varsity football team came out with a bang that was shot against them when they busted helmets with Holtville. But they didn't give up. They went back to practice, and from that day forward, left a blazing trail behind them.

The team remained a team through all the times of their season. They had some easy times, but they also had some very difficult times: Ajo and Maricopa. Ajo, a long rival, a team the Rams had never beaten, were the victims on Homecoming.

After that victory, Antelope was number one in conference. Then Maricopa was after Antelope's position since they held the number two spot. The game between the Rams and Maricopa meant the conference championship. The hard fought game ended 1-0 in favor of the Antelope Rams. The glow of pride illuminated around the players as they were named B-West Champs. The Rams' losing streak was over!

The school and team was overjoyed with the victorious season. There was a passion inside the team, and that passion made their dream happen.

They finally had a good year. How do I know that? Up played the fight song a million times

Together we can

The Antelope JV Football Team was on their way to the top. At the beginning of the season more than half of the team consisted of freshmen. They had problems and differences, but they knew they would have to overcome them. With the help of the crowd and all the spirit of Antelope, the JV football team started working together toward a great season.

Bobby Stricklin said, "The team had a terrific season. We had a very good record. I think the most important reason for our success was that the football players learned how to play as a team." Bobby added, "Coach Koury did a good job teaching the team to visualize the Antelope JV Football Team as a winning team, and I know the players wanted to turn up as a winning team."

Throughout the season the team had a lot of spirit and kept our school saying, "We can together." They proved they could work together by ending their season victoriously. With a final record of 4 and 3, the JV football team finally overcame their problems, and in the end, they came out winning.

"There's No Stopping Us," by Ollie and Jerry, was the varsity volleyball team's theme for the 1984 season. The team's determination to succeed began the first day of practice.

Injuries, a new coach, and rebuilding skills were concerns for a successful year. During all their matches fire blazed from the Ramettes' eyes as they worked their way to their goal.

Desire and ambition made the team what it ended up being: successful. Cindy Tryon stated, "I care so much, and I want the rest of the team to care too!"

The team hit some hard spots: losing to Ajo, losing players to injury, and placing second instead of first at divisionals. State was still within reach. They beat Florence in the opening match, but then lost to Benson in the semi-finals.

Even with that loss, they were a winning team. At the end of their season, the girls realized that with a dream, talent, and ambition, there was no stopping them.

JV's make school history

The date was October 12. The score was Antelope 14, Seton 6. Angie Cuevas served the ball. After a few hits back and forth across the net, Seton finally gave in, giving the Rammettes their final victory.

For the first time in Antelope's history, the JV volleyball squad ended their season with an undefeated record. They went through 14 games with no losses. As Miss Milburn, the varsity coach, said, "Since I have been at Antelope, there has never been a JV team better than this one!"

The season started with a mostly unexperienced JV team. Although most of the players were beginners, with the help of first year coach Cathy McCormick, the girls evolved into a powerful team.

Success didn't come easily, though. An especially trying time faced the team when two of their best players were moved up to varsity. It seemed that the team would never be the same. However, with combined spirit and teamwork, the JV team faced the challenge and proved to be the best in the state.

As the season moved on, the JV team got better and better, and the girls continued to destroy all the other teams. On the night of October 12, after beating Seton for an undefeated season, all the JV players felt the same about their successful team and season:

AWESOME — TOTALLY AWESOME!

The season started off with a new bunch of guys, young and inexperienced. True, this was no team that could "dunk it" or shoot a twenty foot jump shot, but the varsity boys basketball players were determined to have a winning season.

Ricky Calvin, a returning senior player, stated, "The only way we could get experience was by getting out on the court and getting it." The team did just that, but with a slow start. They had three straight losses before their first conference win against Gila Bend. The game had been tough, but the boys outplayed the Gila Monsters, giving them their first conference victory. Ricardo Rodriguez stated, "It was a scary feeling walking in that gym seeing all the people psyched up. But I guess the people psyched us up too because we beat them."

The Gila Bend game was the turning point for the Antelope team. Each game thereafter was either a close game or a winning game.

Unfortunately, the Rams' victories were cut short during the B-West Divisional Tournament. Although the team defeated Baboquivari in their first game at divisionals, they went no farther than the semi-finals where Antelope was sadly defeated by Ajo with score of 41-56.

Overall, the Rams ended up with a decent season, and Antelope could certainly expect some more experienced and determined players for next year.

Nobody thought the girls' varsity basketball team would amount to much. Since most of the girls from last year's team were gone, people wondered if the team would ever win against the tough teams in their division.

Coach Robinson knew better. "I knew that we had the best team in the league from the beginning of practice," he said. And the girls proved their capability by defeating several tough teams and proudly ending their season with an undefeated conference record.

The girls went to the divisional tournament with high hopes of returning as the B-West champions. Their hopes were crushed, however, when they were defeated in their first game, consequently also losing the B-West title they had worked so hard for.

Even with their loss at divisionals, the girls went to the state tournament as the second place team. Although the team did not win state, the girls were still proud of their victory-filled season, and Antelope was proud of them for proving their Ram excellence.

Those inspirations

The inspiration to win kept the JV boys' basketball team spirited throughout their season. The JVs started off with a big win on their minds, but their first game was a disappointment. Losing was not the JV's style and it did not take long for them to figure out just how a winning game went. After they started winning, they could not be stopped. The JV team never gave in easily and their winning record proved it.

Tim Rush said, "I was really proud to be on the JV team this year. We started out as a team of thirteen individuals but ended up one great team. I feel we have shown a new feeling for JV sports."

Antelope was proud of the boys' basketball JV team, and the coaches looked forward to coaching some of the JVs on the varsity team in 1985-86.

We are the young

They were girls. They were beginners. Those characteristics were in no way going to stop the Antelope JV Girls Basketball Team. The girls had hopes and dreams of learning and acquiring the skills it took to be the best.

Although they experienced some rough times, just like all athletic teams know, rough times did not slow these girls down. These bad times just motivated the Rammettes into gaining more skills to rise to the top.

After their challenging season, the girls continued to look forward to new challenges in future years. They were beginners. But the Rammettes let nothing stand in the way of their dreams of success.

Varsity hopefuls

The freshman basketball team's season was full of exciting moments. Such moments included a last second winning shot to beat Ajo 43-42 and the team's big win over Yuma which marked the first time the Rams Freshman Basketball Team had defeated Yuma in three years.

Despite their exciting victories, the team had its downs as well. They lost six out of ten games, but their spirits remained high, and the team members' efforts always shined through.

Jose Ramirez, a player, commented, "Well our year wasn't the best. I think at the end of our season we had it together, though, and we won against Yuma in one of our best games."

It took them a while to get their act together, but by the end of the season, the freshman team was ready to take on anything that came their way. Their talent and improved skills would be welcomed in their future careers as JV and varsity players.

The Antelope Rams, in only their second year of competition, became the top rated Class B team in Arizona and won the Class ABC Region III Championship. It was also a year which saw Antelope crown its first state champion when Rocky Jaime brought home the gold in the 191 lb. class.

The wrestlers were led by five seniors who earned state recognition. In Antelope's Wrestling Team, however all the members proved to be winners. The team sent three sophomores to state as individual state qualifiers, and several freshmen varsity letters.

The Antelope Wrestlers dedicated their championship season to Manuel Chacon, a friend and team member who died during their season. They proudly wore Manny's initials on their uniforms and carried his winning spirit with them to the regional championships.

The Antelope wrestlers did a dynamite job in their second season. They were on their way to many more glorious seasons.

Harrod's big scare

Harrod's Department Store was undoubtedly one of the most popular and biggest department stores in the world. Located in the heart of London, England, Harrod's attracted anyone from boys to girls and tourists to localists.

Because it was stocked with anything from hardware to expensive jewelry and carried the latest fashions of clothing and cosmetics, Harrod's attracted thousands of people a day.

In 1984, Harrod's success was almost destroyed when a tragic accident occurred directly in front of the department store. A bomb exploded. After hours, days, and even weeks of repairing, though, Harrod's Department Store was back into its push and shove, hectic business.

Destined success

As the school year neared its end, the students and staff could see their long sought-after destination in sight. They had searched, worked, and fought for success, and finally, after a long hard struggle, they reached and felt it.

The year had been filled with challenges, but the Antelope Rams had met them with pride and confidence. Every student, every teacher, every supportive community member had fought the same battle and had faced the same challenges. Their joint efforts toward progress had enabled Antelope to prosper. Through the Rams' determination to reach their goals, the "Ram Pursuit" had been reached, and Antelope would continue to prosper from the many accomplishments made in 1984-85.

Two hundred fifty Desert Sands "Ram Pursuit" Yearbooks were published by the Desert Sands Yearbook Staff at Antelope Union High School in Wellton, Arizona. Printing of the books was done by Herff Jones in Marceline, Missouri.

In memory of Manuel Chacon

Manuel Chacon was born June 8, 1966 in Yuma, Arizona. He graduated from Wellton Elementary School in 1981. Manuel was a senior at Antelope when he died December 27, 1984 in a car accident. He was a leader and was involved in many activities during his three and a half years at Antelope. Manuel's final contribution to Antelope was one that none of his fellow students will forget: Manuel helped increase the Christmas spirit at Antelope by dressing up as Santa Claus for the school Christmas program. His cheerful smile, his kindness, and his very presence will be missed by all who knew and loved him.

Mr. B.

Thanks for all the help with,

I enjoyed singing
and performing for you.

Mr Bechtelof,
We really enjoyed band these past yrs. The band has sure come a long way. He band is the greatest thing though.
We really learned alot. and have had alot of fun. The band has sure been something to be proud of. I'm going to try to get into the music program at A.W.C. this fall.
Take care and enjoy your summer.
Thanks for everything
Love Donna
Montgomery

P.S. Take Care that Back!

Mr. Bechtloff
It has truly been a pleasure and a privilege to have you as my music instructor for the past five years. Thank you for all the help you've always given me and for putting up with me throughout the years.
It's hard to believe the time has passed so quickly, but it really has, and now it's time for me to move on. I won't go crazy at ASU, I promise, and I'll keep pushing myself to improve as far as music is concerned. Thanks again for being a great teacher.

Love,
Nora Amara

Mr. B,

I have really lots of fun in these past full year. Jazz Band was even more fun and I'm really going to miss it. You helped make Antelope fun and worth coming. Thanks for teaching us all so well. Keep on practicing HAHHA

Thanks Again

Yours,
